Washington, D. C. RICHARD H. SYLVESTER, - - Editor. WASHINGTON, D. C., NOV. 27, 1885

THOMAS A. HENDRICKS. The death of the Vice-President of the United States removes from public life a man not only eminent for his statesmanlike qualities and elevated patriotism, but greater still in the incorruptible honesty and purity of his personal character. As a man he was respected of all because he wore no disguises. There were no two faces to either his politics, his religion or the tenor of his ways in any of the rela-

The country, no less than friends and relatives, will mourn his death. It is in the nature of a public bereave-

EXTREMEDICATION OF

VACANCIES BY DEATH. Spain has lost her sovereign and the United States the executive officer second in the personnel of the Govern ment. Both countries are interested in and discussing questions of succession to the vacancies thus created.

It is not unnatural for Americans to congratulate themselves upon the fact that while the succession in Spain involves a possible revolution, there is no hint or fear of any trouble growing out of the death of our Vice-President. It looks, however, as if the succession in both cases would be provided for without difficulty. The talk of revo Intion puts the Government always on Its guard; and it is more than likely that Alfonso's successor will be determined upon in the person of his three year-old daughter, with the widow, Queen Christina, as regent. That such will be the case is outlined at least by the cable advices from Madrid.

The proposed Republic for Spain does not seem to rest upon a firm foundation, and a revolution, to be successful, should have been sprung at once. That it was not done serves to allay any fear on that point.

In this country there are three name prominently mentioned for the Presidency pro tempore of the Senatethose of Senators Logan, Edmunds and Sherman, with the former apparently the first choice of the Republican parts at large. That party is very warmly attached to the man who was second on its national ticket a year ago, and who in the opinion of many deserved to be the first. There is a strong disposition in the party, now that the opportunity has presented itself, that General Logan should be given that for which he contended so valiantly in the last Presidential campaign. While he may not be the personal choice of a majority of the Republican members of the Senate, it is by no means improbable that these gentlemen will have to defer to the evident choice of Republi cans generally and make General Logan their President pro tempore.

AN ORGAN OUT OF TUNE. Our esteemed Democratic contempo rary ejaculates "God save the President." So ciaculate we all. But when it goes on to say with a maudlin sort of sentimentalism that "his precious life is all that stands between the country and anarchy," so ejaculate we not. There never was greater nonsense written. It is not the President-it is sixty odd millions of people who stand between the country and anarchy. Neither President, nor Vice-President, nor President pro tempore of the Senate, nor Speaker of the House of Representatives could save the country from anarchy if the people were bent upon it. Neither could the annihilation of the country into anarchy if the people were opposed to it. The organ of the Administration should learn that ours is not a Government of one man, but of the sovereign citizen, and if there is any standing between to be done, it is the sovereign any or all of these officials precipitate citizen who does it. Even in case of an absolute vacation of the Executive office, as there would be in the event of Mr. Cleveland's death prior to the meeting of Congress, the Government would run along as usual. It might prolong the solicitude of a number of patriots who are waiting to be Presidential postmasters or something else in the pay of the Treasury, but there would be no anarchy.

The Constitution as it is-the Union as it is-cost too much blood and treasure to be fooled with.

The sovereign citizen would very carefully see to it that they were not fooled with, and much as he might deplore the situation and the neglect of Congress to provide against its occurrence, would happily survive the interregnum.

The sovereign citizen is not an an archist.

THE "EXTRA" CRITIC. Owing to a lack of proper facilities for issuing an extra edition, at an hour when neither printers, pressmen nor press were available, the whole force having scattered for the night and the ensuing holiday; and to the further fact that the mechanical disabilities of THE CRITIC incurred by the late fire have not been fully replaced, the news of the sudden death of Vice-President Hendricks on Wednesday evening found us anything but well prepared for communicating the melancholy intelligence to the public.

States and of a statement tinguished as Thomas A. Hendricks, was news of such a mature; be veverthat it was worth a herele effort to print and eleculate it. We felt that nothing short of absolutely incormount. dife obstacles could exense such eslect of duty and want of enterprise failure on such an occasion would

It was under these circumstances and as the quickest way to solve a knotty problem that we sought the kindly secommedation of Mr. J. H. Polkinhorn of the well-known D-street printing house, who, in connection with his extensive business, publishes "The New National Theatre Program." It was by the use of the forms of this publication, by substituting our own "head" for that of the "Program" and taking out enough of its matter to let in our own, that the difficulty was overcome and thousands of the citizens of Washington informed between 8 o'clock and midnight that the illustrious Vice President was no more.

It was the best that could be done. It was done promptly and energetically, It saved the National Capital from what would certainly have been a somewhat humiliating reflection upon its journalistic enterprise, of being the only city of consequence in the country, that failed to issue an extra newspaper upon an occasion of the gravest noment and universal public concern.

To Mr. Polkinhorn, who so generusly gave us a lift in this emergency, our neighbors of the National specilican, whose helping hand was be freely extended, and to the community at large, whose appredation of our endeavors in its behalf was so overwhelmingly attested at that time and again on yesterday. Turn Chiric tenders its acknowledgments. Although its Thanksgiving Day was scarcely the day of rest which it had promised itself and recommended to athers, and was rather a day of mourning than of feasting, yet we have the satisfaction of knowing that being spent for the good of our friends. it was not spent wholly in vain.

Mn. L. J. JENNINGS, who was for several years the managing editor of the New York Times and then London correspondent of the New York World, has been returned to Parliament for the Stockport Division. Mr. Jennings is a gentleman of superior literary atainments. His most recent works have been a novel, of which he made Jay Gould the peculiar hero, and the edit ing of the Croker papers. The latter, by the way, is almost as charming a lece of work as Mr. Trevelyan's Life of Lord Macauley.

Congressman Adams of New York says that now Mr. Hendricks is dead David B. Hill is the only Democrat living. We had a kind of suspicion that there were a good many Democrats in the country who at least think that they are left.

THE CRITIC celebrated vesterday, at the same time taking the opportunity to issue a paper full of valuable and interesting information. THE CRITIC hopes that its thousands of readers did as much good and had as enjoyable a time as itself.

In Overcouts. Our stock is large and carled, and; as newspaper space Is expensive, we must fimit ourselves to alking to you about one thing at a We do not say to you that we have more Overcoats than all the other clothing houses combined. It would not be true if we did; but we do say, and stake our claim to honesty on the truth of our statement, that we have as large a variety, as well selected an assertment, as elegantly cut, made and trimmed stock of Overcoats for Men. Youths and Boys as those who make higher claims can show you, and at prices fully 25 per cent, below what you have heretofore paid for goods of the same quality. In saying this we do not ask you to take our unsupported statement, but we wish to remind you in the most respectful manner that you have every opportunity of inquiring into the correctness of our claim. Look around. exercise your faculties, judge for yourselves, post yourselves on the value of goods. If you do these things, and the saving of money is any consideration to you, you will quickly decide where your best interest lies. In submitting to you through the papers our claim to selling fine Clothing at popuar prices, we use plain and simple lan grage. We employ no man of letters to use obsolete words and high-sounding Latin phrases with which to mystify you. Truth lends us force. We need no scribe. We have Overcoats for sale in all weights, colors, styles and fabrics, ranging in price from $4 to $40. No ready-made Overcoat is worth more. We respectfully invite you to examine our stock, o well what is due to an invited guest to treat you otherwise than with coursy and respect, whether you come to ook or buy
